

WEDE5020 POE Part 2: CSS Styling and Responsive Design

1. Purpose of This Update

This document explains the changes made to the website after the feedback from Part 1. Before this update, the website had no styling at all. Every page showed plain black text on a white background, with no colours, fonts, spacing, or layout. This update adds full CSS styling to the website, while keeping the original HTML content the same.

2. Summary of Changes

2.1 External Stylesheet Added

One external CSS file, `style.css`, was created and linked to every page of the website (Index, About, Services, Enquiry, and Contact). This was done using a `` tag inside the `` section of each page. No styling was written directly inside the HTML files, so all styling comes from this one file only.

2.2 Basic/Default Style Added

A CSS reset was added to remove the extra spacing that browsers add by default, which can look different from browser to browser. A basic style was then set for the whole website, including a default font, a starting font size, and a main colour scheme. This gives every page the same starting look.

2.3 Colour Scheme Added

A colour scheme suited to a barber and beauty salon was added to the website. Deep plum is used for the header and footer, gold is used for buttons and highlights, soft pink is used for the form sections, and ivory is used as the background colour.

2.4 Text Styling Added

Styling was added to control how the text looks, including the font type, font size, font weight, line spacing, and letter spacing. Headings use a decorative font to match the salon's brand, while normal text uses a simple, easy-to-read font.

2.5 Page Layout Added

Flexbox was used to arrange the navigation menu links in a neat row. CSS Grid was used on the Services page so that the different services are shown in even columns instead of a long list.

2.6 Visual Styling and Button Effects Added

Borders, rounded corners, and light shadows were added to the service cards and forms to give them a card-like look. Background colours were added to the header, footer, and form sections. Hover, focus, and active effects were added to links, buttons, and form fields, so the colour changes slightly when a user clicks or moves the mouse over them.

2.7 Responsive Images Added

The ``srcset`` and ``sizes`` attributes were added to the images on the Services page. This lets the browser choose a smaller image for smaller screens and a larger image for bigger screens, which helps the page load faster on phones.

2.8 Responsive Design Completed

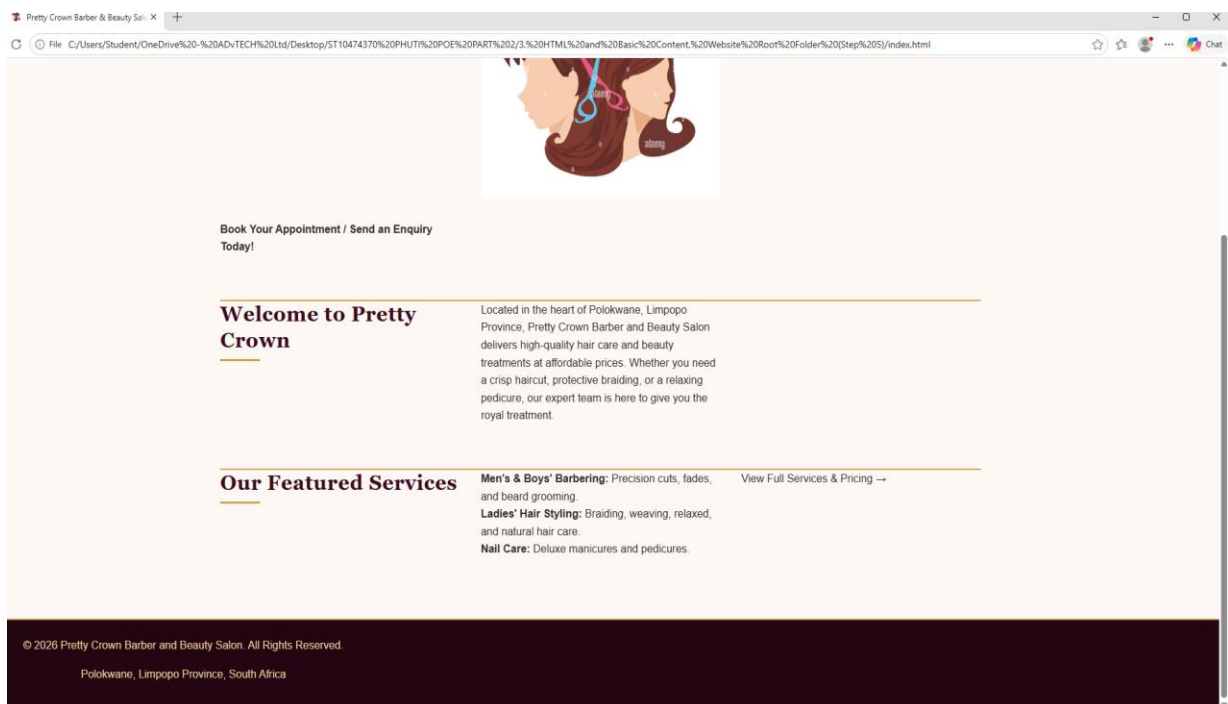

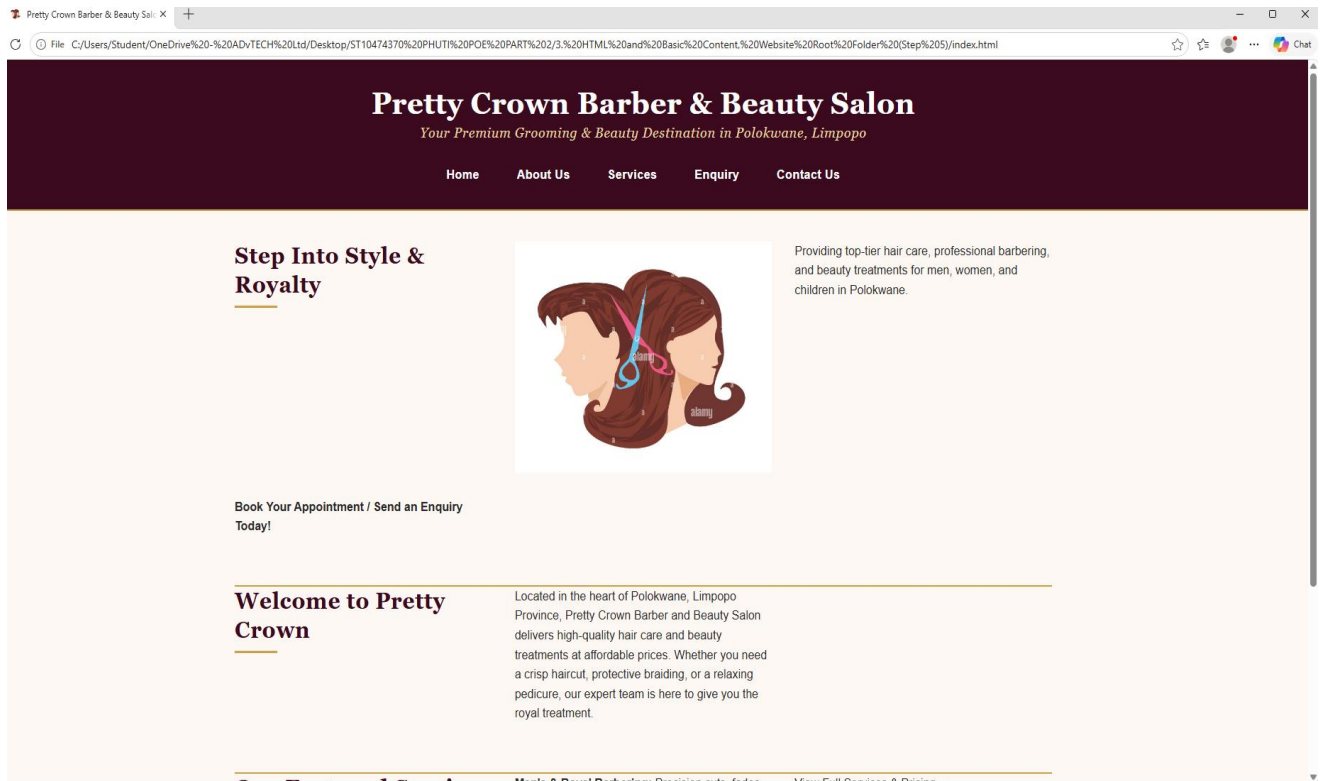

Media queries were added so the website works well on different screen sizes. On tablet screens (up to 1024px wide), the services show in two columns. On mobile screens (up to 600px wide), the services show in one column, the menu stacks in a list, headings become smaller, and buttons stretch to the full width of the screen. ``rem`` units and percentages were used instead of fixed pixel sizes, so the text and spacing can adjust smoothly on different screens.

2.9 Testing Completed

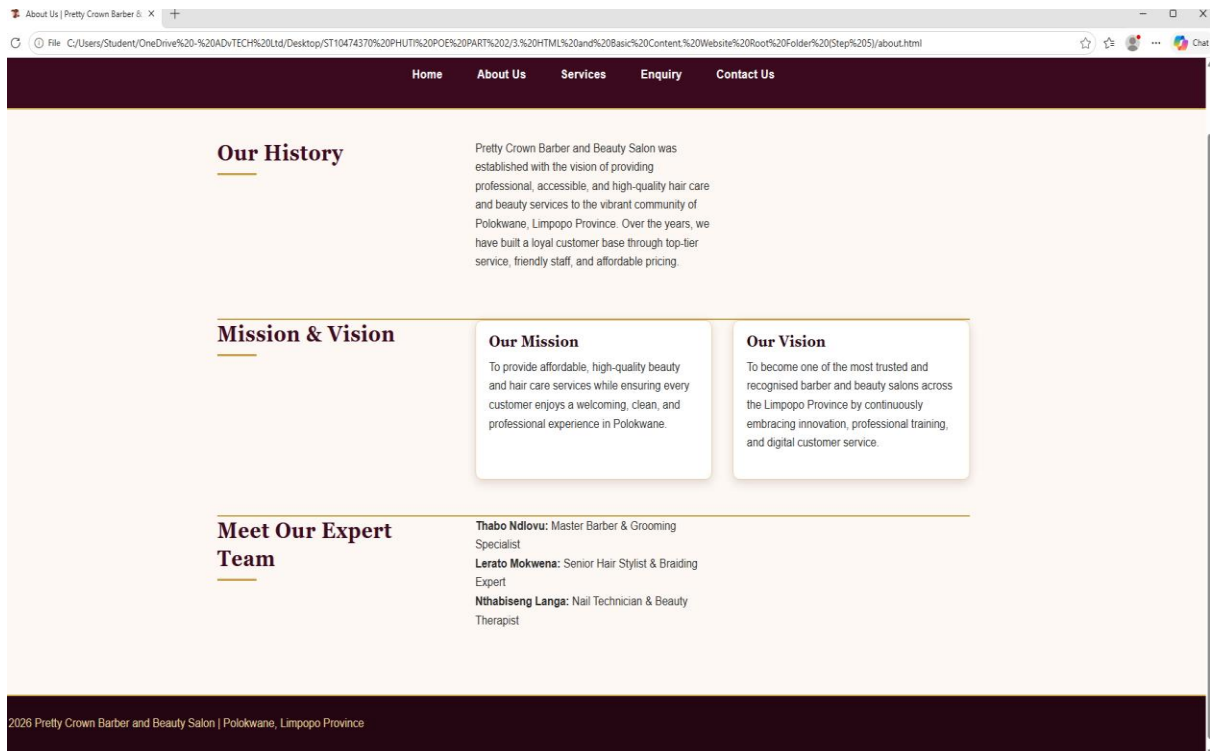

The website was tested using browser developer tools on desktop, tablet, and mobile screen sizes to make sure the layout, text, images, and buttons all display correctly.
